Future book: The writer focused on personal self-development which building and renewing ourselves were to survive difficult contexts, for example, unfavourable government policy, having trouble getting a job, and dealing with upcoming difficult situation. However, this book is not definitely a final solution or tricks & tips which could be changed your life in short period of time, being rich overnight, having lasting happiness without doing, being clever without learning or finding solutions by using the same methods.

The writer also illustrated transformation through history which people encountered since the past. The leaders of each nation sacrificed and suffered from pain in order to shape the future which this is origin of the present time.

The House of Romanov, for example, was the reigning dynasty in Russia, The House of Windsor is the reigning royal house of the United Kingdom, and Lee Kuan Yew who was the first Prime Minister of Singapore, he played an important role in deciding the future of the entire country.

The readers would be encouraged to involve in the process of framing their future by learning from the past as it was demonstrated in this book in order to reconsider their self-improvement. This could be one of the initial steps to brighten their future. In order to achieve the future in the current state of chaos, individuals required self-determination and taking firm actions including improving self-worth, careless of other criticism, stop being obsession with sacredness, thoroughly thinking, being creative and unique. Additionally, this book does not only demonstrate the self-improvement, but also remind the readers to consider their self-awareness and to what extent would they know themselves? These are important principles of establishing their strength and power which can be tools for improving self-competence. As a result, people would work with more happiness and patient.

By reading this book, the readers could change their perspective and reset their thoughts towards the methods of self-improvement. There is no ultimately success formula which could immediately enrich your life or rapidly being happiness after studying this book but learning from other experience from around the world could lead to a better future.

Word of "Future" in this book particularly means intellect which is gained by learning history both points of view; failure and success which would be considered as case studies. Through experimental and adaptable process, these could create their self-direction and individual formula preparing for the new era.

Furthermore, the writer created unique identity of this book which the content is straightforward, intelligible, clear and concise. The illustrations of key person and landmarks could also gain a better understanding for the readers and easier reaching the writer's message.

These are examples of epigram from this book.

"In the modernisation, we are able to securely stand on the small area."

"In Japan, well-known chef used a sharp knife which had been made by the same method of Samurai sword for cooked and filleted fish in the dim light for billionaire who sat, calmly waited and had conversation with gentle voice. The chef punctiliously made sushi by hands before delivering to him. He ate and finished his food within one minute before the taste changed."

"This is honour of profession which results in respect for fishmonger from the great businessman."

"Acquiring new skills are developed by doing practice that is the method of finding yourselves similar to Samurai training in the past."

"This is the method of making peace and preventing killing among people for seeking a better solution and peaceful coexistence."

"This is the method of making peace and preventing killing among people for seeking a better solution and peaceful coexistence."

"This is education for people who are awakened, having strategic thinking and wise which it has been utilized by intellectuals since the past. Therefore, this should be explored and learning by young generation in order to framing their future."

"Nowadays, it is shame that there are many people around the world who believe that they know the others and have connections which could be used to improve their social status and make them being in the media spotlight. However, when they are alone, they could realize that these are nothing, thus, this feeling less is resulted by shallow relationships."
